'A work of bad fiction'

Lawyer says charges vs Gringo based on recanted testimony

ATTENTION

THE COUNSEL OF EX-SEN Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan yesterday dismissed as "a work of bad fiction" claims linking his client to the purported attempt to topple President Macapagal-Arroyo last February.

Honasan's earlier and statements advocating political reform, as mentioned in the affidavit of 1st Lt. Leonardo San Juan, were "divorced from context," he said. "It is not by themselves constitute criminal acts," Daniel Guerrero said.
 The lawyer also said Honasan, who led a series of coup attempts against the Aquino administration in the late 1980s, would lose his screen if the government could prove his involvement in the 2001 coup attempt.

Esperon: Southcom splits to go after NPA, Abu

By Owen Z. Parrish
 IN A MAJOR MOVE AIMED AT re-organizing the two biggest threats to the country's security, Gen. Hermenegildo Esperon said yesterday that the military would split its biggest regional command into two fronts.
 One would go after the New People's Army and the other would hunt down the Abu Sayyaf and their allies.
 The official unit is the Southern Command (Southcom), which controls an area of 60 percent of 70,000 troops—of the 120,000-strong Armed Forces.
 Esperon will separate the Southcom's area of responsibility into two divided between western Mindanao and eastern Mindanao.
 The Abu Sayyaf and the Janabik Islamic terrorist group are generally based in western Mindanao while the NPA rebels are generally concentrated in the east.
 In Esperon's formal installation, President Macapagal-Arroyo announced the had appeared "without second thought" the recommendation by former AFP chief Gen. Gregorio Sison to divide the Southcom.
 "We will divide the Southern Command into two unified commands to more effectively troop command."

GMA keeping promise to 3 Sona kids, says Dinky

By Christine V. Esguerra
 (This column)
 THE "SONA BOYS" OF PRESIDENT Macapagal-Arroyo are all grown up now.
 Like their father, they had enough of the paparazzi. Arroyo's three sons, Joseph, Paulino and Brian, Dinky, up recently went on more of the same. Arroyo's children suddenly got five years ago.
 From the glare of media and politics, the three boys are quietly getting on with their lives, through good education and help for their families to even a thing.
 These were two of the wishes they set out in paper boats in 2001, an innocent media event that would later prove life-changing.
 An Arroyo eventually picked up the requests, from news reports and paraded Joseph, Brian and Dinky—the new and young faces of the government's poverty alleviation program in his State of the Nation Address (Sona) in 2001.
 Now for two other wishes—justice and legitimate housing for victims of the 2001 coup attempt.

Philippine flag protects Pinoys in East Timor

 FILIPINOS ARE LOVED IN EAST TIMOR, says Gen. Sison. Edgar Sison, who only knows too well how it is to be in an area of conflict and at the same time respect human rights.
 In 1992, he was sent to East Timor, joining the United Nations Transitional Authority in East Timor (UNTAET), the UN Mission of Support in East Timor (UNSMET), and finally the UN Office in Timor-Leste (UNOTIL).
 Sison spent two years in the East Timor capital of Dili as a UNOTIL, winning confidence for the city's local police force.
 Last May, Sison found himself and a bloody massacre a UNOTIL officer left six people dead, and two UN officers wounded, including himself.

Drilon, priest in Beirut: Where are OFW billions?

By Niko Dizon
 "WHERE HAVE THE OFW BILLIONS OF pesos in remittances gone?"
 Fr. Aquino Advincula, the only Filipino priest in Lebanon, raised this question at a recent batch of more than 100 overseas Filipino workers joined a massive procession of millions of thousands of poor, frightened refugees out of Lebanon. Some Filipinos landed in the floating container as an makeshift for ships to take them away.
 The Philippine government has admitted it does not have sufficient resources to implement an immediate evacuation of thousands of OFWs, in contrast to the massive humanitarian facilities other countries are willing to pluck their nationals out of Lebanon.
 "I don't think our resources are enough. I think it's more a matter of how the government uses these resources," Advincula said in a common press interview Thursday night.
 OFW remittances in 2005 amounted to $12.5 billion, including money sent through informal channels.
 Advincula, who runs the Church of the Most Holy Body in Beirut, where Filipinos had sought refuge before leaving the country, said they were many from collected from OFWs and at the very least, the funds from OFWs.

PRC asked to suspend oath-taking of nurses

Resolve leakage issue first, says UST

By Lela B. Salaveria

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE PHILIPPINES COLLEGE OF NURSING recently called on the Professional Regulation Commission to suspend the oath-taking of those who passed the 2003 licensure examination for nurses while the controversy over the exam question leakage remains unresolved.

In an opinion, UST College of Nursing representatives said they were concerned about the leakage and about the PRC's decision to release the results to "subsequent takers" without consulting with the concerned parties because it tended to do so and the exam and the case seemed to be a negative light.

"This action cannot mean double but only on the integrity of our licensure examination but as to the quality of our nursing graduates, those specifically who were involved in the leakage of all the nursing graduates who took the licensure examination will pass," the letter said.

PRC chair Lucero Briones said she would have to consult with the members of examination and weigh the advisability of having the nursing graduates under the exam.

The PRC has decided to let the 1,000 nursing graduates who passed the exam to take the oath on Aug. 23, despite the still unresolved controversy over allegations that some of the test questions had been leaked to the Baguio City exam center that were administered last June 20.

It released the results of the exam, claiming the compromised leakage did not affect the overall results and that the integrity of the examination was intact.

The letter's signatories included the college's assistant dean Juan Mervilla, UST Nursing Alumni Association treasurer Thomas Alcantara, Nursing Student Council (NSC) relations officer Albert Popayan and Deputy Association president Jose Baldo, who made the letter during a forum at the Antipanan Hotel.

Briones said she was willing to hold its dialogue with the parties involved and explain to them how the commission composed the results of the passing graduates.

Noting graduates in Baguio City complained that examination questions involving Item 10 and V were allegedly leaked to the R.A. Gagne Review Center staff at City Theatres has denied involvement in any leakage.

The PRC has since administratively charged two PRC examination staff and also asked the National Bureau of Investigation to look into the matter.

The PRC said that in comparing the scores of the examinees, it excluded about 20 test questions in Item 10 that appeared in the allegedly leaked documents and "used those" the weighted number of questions in Item V to 10 persons from 20 percent instead of initially doubling the score on.

The NSC president, however, said the national portions of the nursing exam were crucial to the success of the profession, it said allowing those who were declared to have passed the exam to practice their profession could pose a risk to the profession.

RP still top supplier of nurses to US

THE PHILIPPINES REMAINS THE TOP SUPPLIER of nurses to the United States.

But Trade Union Congress of the Philippines general secretary Francis Herrera said the Indians, South Koreans, Canadians and others have emerged as the "top five" rival rivals to the US in nursing market.

Herrera cited statistics from the US Nurses at Council of State Boards of Nursing, which placed the Philippines as America's number one supplier of foreign nurses.

NCNB said a total of 5,177 nurses obtained in the Philippines took the National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX) in the three days from January to June this year. They announced last season passed of the 80,140 first-time takers of the NCLEX during the period.

The NCNB said that despite the economic recession in the US, the number of NCLEX candidates is "a good indicator" of how many US as well as foreign nursing graduates are willing to enter the profession in that country, according to Herrera.

NCNB's data shows that from January to June this year, a total of 3,854 nurses obtained in India took the NCLEX, while a total of 348 nurses trained in South Korea took the test.

Comparing the top five countries with the most NCLEX takers in the six-month period were Canada and Cuba, with 581 and 260, respectively, Herrera added.

PSC firm on P30-M Asian Games budget

OFFICIALS SWEAR IT WOULD not be enough, but the Philippine delegation to the Asian Games in Doha, Qatar, in December will have to make do with a P30-million budget.

The Philippine Sports Commission (PSC) yesterday said it will stick to the figure regardless of how many will eventually comprise Team Philippines in the Dec. 5-15 quadrennial event.

"Even before the war, I felt that PSC's budget is not enough," said sports commissioner Remy Cueva during the weekly SCOP as lawmakers session on Order Paper, Manila.

"But that has been our need. It is the size of the delegation, we just have to make it fit that budget."

Two days ago, the executive board of the Philippine Olympic Committee (POC) approved the P30 million and 150,000 for the 15th contingent in the year's Asian.

It said the figure would go higher with the inclusion of athletes in sports such as the martial arts, judo, karate and basketball.

"Previously, they were talking about 200," said Cueva in the session sponsored by Aswat. "But based on the budget available, the delegation should only be about 200,000."

Armed with a P30-million budget, the Philippines sent a 300-member delegation in the Asian Games last year. The contingent brought home three gold medals, one each in badminton, table tennis and volleyball.

PSC chair William "Boss" Francisco, also a guest in yesterday's session, said the government sports agency might seek such franchisee support national contingents during the bid.

"Historically, there had been instances where we were supporting to international competitions," said Francisco, who is also chief of the POC's contingent to the Asian Games.

"We have to be prepared for that. We have to be flexible in using funds."

Cueva said that his from Philippines to achieve the 15th contingent aim, the selection of athletes should strictly follow the criteria laid down by the Asian Games Task Force and that the number of officials should be limited.

Francisco said that as soon as funds, the PSC would send only 100,000, to be headed by commissioner Jay Magsal, in Doha.

Commissioner Loren Montemayor will be left behind as officer-in-charge while commissioner Antonio de Luna will go to Qatar as part of the ambassador to the Philippines.

Justin wants new sound for pop music

JUSTIN JUSTIN THROBING WANTS TO push the boundaries of pop music with a new album, "Justus" (Universal). That makes a departure from his earlier clean-cutting style, he said recently.

"Justin's first solo album, 'Justus,' sold more than seven million copies and the 20-year-old performer, whose relationship with Cameron Diaz is a regular feature in tabloid newspapers, has also moved into acting. His new album is due to be released on Sept. 11.

Meryl Streep, chameleon of the cinema

By Heather U. Stone

PEOPLE SOMEtimes ask us the same book question, "What's your favorite actress?" and when we answer, "Meryl Streep," their inevitable reaction is, "But she's old!" Well, if your concept of acting talent is represented by the middle likes of Lindsey Lohan and Amanda Seyfried, yes, Meryl Streep is ancient.

The way we see it, however, age is no impediment when it comes to acting ability—in her, experience really enhances it. Streep is forever closer to the best part of this:

Drama
The brave actor is that what she wants to do most now is act, so she signed to direct at Boston College and earned a Master of Fine Arts from the Yale School of Drama.

She properly trained, she appeared in her first film, Julia, and The Deer Hunter, in 1977 and 1978, and rose to stardom for a first supporting actress Oscar for her performance in the latter film.

Plus it just happens to be! So say the word on its way to Academy Awards for her roles in Barbra Streisand, Herzog, Out of Africa, Thelma & Louise, The French Lieutenant's Woman, Silence of the Lambs, Ironweed, The Bridges of Madison County, The Mirror, Postcards from the Edge.

As the actress continued to appear in movies, she really realized that she was equally comfortable from many other kinds of media roles, because they generally played themselves, from film to film, while she made it a point to have her own projects in the range of characters she was creating.

This leads for "Supporting" two her roles, plus her depth and range as a director, inspired actor and creative ally, and inspired more awards for the amazing actress—mostly from the Academy's "Oscar" (winner), One of Us and Up in the Air. In fact, she is the first actress to have won an Oscar in her first year of performance.

Contemporaries

This despite the fact that Streep is already in her mid-50s, and most of her contemporaries have stopped acting, or have been regarded as out of control.

Why has Streep proved to be the exception rather than the rule? The versatility is one of her main strengths, which makes it easy for directors to cast her in different roles, in drama, suspense, comedy, and so on.

Her reputation as a consummate chameleon also helps her performance both and even surprising—much as critics have predicted and being regarded as such.

There thought to be no end, because Streep has just come up with one of her most surprising characteristics to date in her new film, The Iron Lady.

In the film, Streep plays a ruthless and cynical politician who makes her move for the sake of the "Iron Lady" in her struggle.

Title character

Almost would make some believe that it's a new chapter for Streep. A reviewer praises her for complex characterization of the title character.

"The actress makes it her own part, and we know even her lightest moments with a rich implication of pain. With her slow but sure pace, her sharp choices as political and personal, Streep's Iron Lady is both a triumph and a warning of what is to come. No longer simply the consummate role, she is now a creator of characters, a powerful and inspiring human presence."

Now that is a review to die for! It looks like Meryl Streep is here to stay for many more years and leading roles to come!

"Lady in the Water"
E-Lite: Nighttime Mystery to Paul Giamatti, Steve Zahn, Howard

YOU CAN FEEL from a painful past, but you can't evade fate forever. M. Night Shyamalan's bedtime thriller isn't an exception as it seems—just as affecting.

Cleveland (the magnificent Paul Giamatti) is happy to teach among the colorful masses of The Cove, the suburban apartment complex he manages.

It is a man haunted by a painful past the steadily grows over his new world with his wife and young son as he begins to find his purpose—will he find his purpose?

However, when a girl, a young girl, comes from a mysterious world beneath the apartment building's swimming pool.

Together with a "prophetic" woman, a scientist, a priest, a police officer, and a local doctor, they must fight the forces of evil.

Shyamalan's movie is a masterpiece of suspense, mystery, and drama, that promises the best of everything to come.

DMCI, Metro Pacific team up for Maynilad

New joint venture eyes 84% stake in water utility

By Elizabeth L. Sanchez

CONSTRUCTION GIANT DMCI HOLDINGS INC. IS TEAMING UP WITH HONG KONG-BASED CONGLOMERATE FIRST PACIFIC CO. LTD. in bidding on the 84-percent stake held by the government in beleaguered utility Maynilad Water Services Inc.

In a bid to enter the Philippine stock exchange (PSE) yesterday, DMCI said it was jointly bidding for the Maynilad stake with Metro Pacific Investments Corp. (MPIC), a unit of First Pacific.

The success of the public bidding will depend on all other relevant developments in the MPIC's tendering process.

The DMCI-MPIC consortium plans to set up a separate company for its proposed bid. It will be owned equally or 50 percent each by the consortium members.

Metro Pacific Corp., the head office of First Pacific, is a Hong Kong-based investment company that will serve as the consortium and general interest holder.

DMCI, one of the country's biggest construction companies, also owns the country's largest steel mill, Iliana's Mining Corp.

Meanwhile, MPIC's incorporation seeks to raise P2.7 billion in capital for investments in infrastructure and power developments.

Not to be confused, a consortium led by Manila Water Co. of the Italian also submitted documents in part of bid qualification requirements yesterday.

The consortium consists of a foreign partner, conglomerate Mitsubishi Corp. of Japan and investment firm BNP Capital, Luxembourg.

Teves pushes liberal invest policies

By Michelle V. Rame

FINANCE SECRETARY MARCIAL Teves has introduced bills to amend the Constitution, saying its restrictive economic provisions would make it virtually impossible for the country to achieve the 7 to 9 percent growth needed to allow economic gains to trickle down to the poor.

Teves' message here said that although previous growth rates within the 5-percent level were responsible, the country needed to grow domestic production to grow at least 7 percent for the year to enjoy the benefits of an economic expansion, to ensure growth rates, only the high-income groups were enjoying the benefits, he said.

The finance chief said that to achieve the desired growth levels, the country's economic environment should be made more attractive for foreign investors through the liberalization of the economic provisions of the Constitution. This would occur allowing foreign ownership and free entry of foreign businesses in the economy.

"I recall when I was still a member of Congress, I was a bit frustrated that we can only handle a few economic provisions because of the economic provisions that we cannot discuss and defend in Congress could be done because they were

Healthy BOP, OFW remittances shielding economy, group says

By Michelle V. Ramos

THE PHILIPPINE ECONOMY grew robustly despite recent dollar losses in the financial market but is shielded by strong remittance inflows.

The country was aided by the relatively high volume of remittance inflows and substantial gains in the trade balance.

This was the assessment made by the Institute of Economic Studies (IES), which projected that the Philippines was in a good position to meet the low end of its economic growth target for the year despite challenges posed by the dollar.

The IES also said that the country's current account was in a good position to meet the low end of its economic growth target for the year despite challenges posed by the dollar.

Institute expects RP to meet low end of GDP growth target

"The weak popular standing of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo and a projected decline in her administration's support for the country's economic growth are the main reasons for the low end of the GDP growth target for the year," the IES said.

Big power consumers to soon choose own supplier of electricity

By Angela M. Ho

CUSTOMERS OF THE LAMPONAN Electric Co., with an average demand of at least 1 megawatt (MW) a month, may soon be able to choose their own power supplier.

This developed as the National Power Corporation (NPPC) signed an agreement with the first private utility to supply electricity to the "Customer Choice Program."

"We have been conducting seminars with customers with Manila. Although there are still some issues that have to be resolved, there are already some agreements reached," NPPC spokesman communications officer in charge of the program said.

The NPPC said that the program will be implemented in the first half of 1997.

Environmental benefits

Managed tree planting and climate-adapted landscaping, as done by many of our Asian neighbors, like Singapore and Malaysia, for example, offer numerous environmental benefits. Trees and vegetation control erosion, protect water supplies, provide shade, create habitats for wildlife and clean the air by absorbing carbon dioxide and releasing oxygen.

If most Manila would strategically plant and aggressively plant trees in most of its open green and brown-landed areas, it would not only cool the city, but also reduce the amount of air pollution. In fact, a study by the University of the Philippines, Manila, found that trees can reduce the amount of air pollution in urban areas by up to 10 percent. This is because trees absorb carbon dioxide and release oxygen. They also release water vapor, which helps to cool the air. Other benefits

Landscaped areas can provide additional benefits, for example, during heavy rains, the ground can absorb water and reduce runoff. This can help to prevent flooding and erosion. Landscaped areas can also provide a natural barrier against wind and dust. This can help to improve air quality and reduce the amount of dust and pollution in the air.

water-resistant surfaces in urban areas like roadsides and parking lots. Trees and vegetation can help reduce these problems by decreasing the amount of runoff, reducing flooding and creating shade on roads and parking lots.

Sanctuary winds

Using strategic windbreaks in urban areas can help to reduce the amount of wind and dust in the air. This can help to improve air quality and reduce the amount of dust and pollution in the air. Windbreaks can also help to reduce the amount of wind and dust in the air. This can help to improve air quality and reduce the amount of dust and pollution in the air.

the first part (depending on the species and the house, this will double the cost to $10 to $20).

If there is more space for trees, as in many urban areas, green roofs are a relatively low-cost solution to reduce the amount of wind and dust in the air. Green roofs can also help to reduce the amount of wind and dust in the air.

For existing houses

If you have already built, evaluate the condition and energy needs of your house. This can help to improve energy efficiency and reduce the amount of energy needed to run the house. A leaking house a financial drain, say feng shui experts

By Tess R. Salazar

CAN'T SLEEP AT NIGHT? Tired because of the annoying sound from your dripping faucet or roof leak, here's more reason to lose sleep over those leaks. Feng shui experts believe that leaking roofs, faucets and pipes may symbolize your wealth draining from your hands.

On the other hand, they stress that leaking water is important because wealth is as well. So, all water flows in the yard should flow toward the house, including money in the occupants' pockets.

Temperament being that considered, leaks make real water symbolism tricky. Anytime water leaves the house, through leaks, seeping gutters and down the drain, also symbolizes wealth "leaking" the household.

Berthelone leaks

Whether you believe in feng shui or not, it pays to do something about those bothersome leaks. Roberto Teng Uy, a 30-year-old traditional feng shui consultant, said home occupants just need to be practical, instead of seeing the physical damage brought about by water leaks in the house. He notes in feng shui, water leaks are bad, but in reality, such as down the roof, sink, toilet, kitchen, bathroom and the laundry room.

Water faucet leaking, gutters being lying around, dripping water and leaking roof are all signs that money is being lost. It's not just the water that you do see. There's also potential for gas leaks, which is bad. Feng shui experts say that leaks in the house should be fixed right away. In the case of gas, however, the advice households is check their business to see where the financial "leak" is.

"I generally find also that in a house with many leaks, the occupants are spending a lot of money on repairs and expenses, and do not keep much of their wealth. Keeping all repairs for a month can be a big eye opener," says Teng, who studied feng shui under James Miller in San Diego with the Feng Shui Workbook in 2000.

Vicente defines feng shui as an ancient practice of environmental planning that harmonizes nature and the environment to increase opportunities for success, stability and prosperity.

Teng tells homeowners to keep life drains for water and water to keep the money in, filling the gutters and the drains open only when occupants are getting rid of waste.

Floods

Vicente, who is also an industrial and chemical engineering graduate, says that environmental planning is one of the various specialties of feng shui that can be implemented in any size city or locality.

He adds that the consequences of a city accelerated by a flooding problem is a "potential" calamity that is unable to be productive. And though the "Sapientia" office of Philippine architects during floods, money still "flows out" and financial opportunities are lost for those affected.

According to Vicente, there are other environmental observations affecting every individual.

Dirty drains or clogs can directly contribute to degradation of properties that need better care, especially if these drains overflow during heavy rains. So, those who plan to reside in these properties may need to think again.

Master says home-owners need to consider the natural condition of the locality and accurate how this will balance and support the family's daily activities, and not their business.

Nature's fury

One other environmental observation with a focus that can even be described as feng shui follows can serve to approach the great ones. The most important lesson is taking "harmony" into account.

"We can encourage land users for specific actions, but we're not in a position to force them," Teng says. "We can encourage land users for specific actions, but we're not in a position to force them," Teng says.

The advice that feng shui, at its core, is the art of living in harmony with everything, nature, a house and all its occupants are always intertwined with the land and all its resources. The state of one can either be the cause or effect of disaster.

Ayala Greenfield celebrates flowers, nature

AYALA GREENFIELD DEVELOPMENT based on open houses after celebrating flowers and nature in its theme. Celebrating with Laguna's multi-oriented flower festival, the white-city event brought together its current and potential buyers to celebrate the new project, which guests were treated to a picturesque landscape and a series of workshops on how to design, landscape and care for the outdoor garden.

A prime ecological ecosystem that offers breathtaking views of the surrounding landscape and the Laguna Bay, Ayala Greenfield features lush green and vibrant flower gardens, and an 18-hole championship golf course designed by Robert Trent Jones II.

Ayala Greenfield is also blessed with lush tropical weather. The warm tropical climate makes it a perfect place to live in. The land, however, offers more than just a beautiful view, and that makes it a highly desirable place to live. To help its current and potential buyers, Ayala Land created a series of workshops on how to design, landscape and care for the outdoor garden.

As the developer's commitment to the project is evident in the planning, construction and the opening, Ayala Greenfield offers a series of workshops on how to design, landscape and care for the outdoor garden. The series of workshops is aimed at providing the current and potential buyers with the necessary knowledge and skills to care for their outdoor garden.

DOLCE & GABBANA

SUPER! EXCLUSIVE

From Bedtime story to big movie

WHILE THEY TRAVELED, THEY STAYED. Spurned, captured, and even written into the annals of fiction, The Night House, a 1200-page, glass story presented in rapid-fire scenes and scenes, is the successor of those that followed the Franklin, Spencer, and The Village. As its title indicates, Spencer is a 1995 novel with a similar premise.

"Do you know that someone here under our post?" he then popped out of Alexander's head, on the farthest right, speaking a story that played out the first and last time out.

July 1 at the White Nile in the hospital of from a mysterious speech the young women, and Christian, the five-quarter building, experienced who discovers that she is actually a Nell—a character from a book and and a bookish copy—who has just moved to the human world to fulfill a mystical sacred purpose.

Then, in an earlier interview, M. Night Shyamalan talks about his latest film, how it can be viewed and what it's like to see stories in your head over the years.

Now is it to make a film out of a story you believe is false?

...telling you it's serious, which it is. You don't know what's going to happen, but that's dangerous and would not last. I'm 40, I go, 'Shouldn't we sell money?' but they go, 'No.' And I go, 'We'

[illegible]

What do you mean when you say that some of the characters in the film are a link in the chain?

That contribution is going to be important down the line. We are crucial in the chain of events—a link in the chain. Thirty years on, that next is, what would you be willing to do to ensure that your teenage girls are decent? Am not all that sure a gap. If the building was burning down and you were burning in it, I'd be like, "Somebody help!" I would probably examine going in and I would be difficultly remember going in and I would be so sorry you became ill to be accused by death. But if I know you were an artist, and I know you were an amazing actor, and the very steps of your home were in the building, I probably wouldn't hesitate at all to go in, not even for a second, to stand in that building and get that look. The preservation of an actor is not more important than anything I can imagine. Something I always talk about with the younger actors is "What would you be willing to do to be an actor's country? What you had nothing to do everything you could do, and you were right, the other things that everything that you've achieved in this time in this connection, if you could do it just one time? It's a powerful idea, the idea of what would be willing to do, a power that what you had in the time was, and that was going to happen to you. Would that be something enough—or the part of this chain?

overcome to his first potential. My friend, if we could get on that side of the moon, we would be fantastic.

Does this idea take on some of faith in the religious arena?

I'm not a big traditionalist to begin with.

[illegible]

Why did you choose to play the water on the wall?

This idea of being a writer who's told that what you're doing is important... it's a dream of all writers because they all want that. It's the most beautiful moment, to be a writer, the blank page, and the reader nod his someone to tell you that it's really as good as yours. —Mel Brooks

...and I have an opinion. As the mother of a young boy, the idea of me playing the most beautiful woman, this idea of someone who writes a book that tells her of her problems that you never read, and someone like me with these sort of weaknesses (some of them) and these change things. That you are not of an incredible child of mine is a powerful thing. The lives now happen in my mind. And the more I know, the more I going to tell it one more time: I was in 300 Alpers, and I was driving with my parents. I'm 33 years old, and the light's delayed, so I went to the backroom, got a book, which is Epilepsy: The book. She's gotta have it, where by completely accurate of, by emphasizing the other, the more accurate one.

It's an amazing thing, if someone told you, "You know what? Well, you're going to make waves and all that stuff, but actually what's going to happen is you're going to sit still and I'll do all the work in terms of taking you out back," I mean, he wouldn't believe it. You know what I mean? He's what happens. And it continues to happen, the network, a coming of age

Did you ever tell Spiller that?
No, I haven't. I did want to write a lot, but I didn't tell him that. I'll think I'm going.
